

Scholar-in-Residence Award

2022 – 2023 Application Guidelines

The Oxford Centre for Islamic Studies promotes excellence in the study of Islam and Muslim societies. The Centre pursues its aims through teaching, research and publication, and by promoting sustained dialogue and collaboration within the global academic community.

The Scholar-in-Residence programme plays a key role in the exchange of knowledge that lies at the heart of the Centre's mission. Since 1987 the Centre's programmes have brought scholars from more than 50 countries in Asia, Africa, the Americas and Europe to Oxford.

Scholar-in-Residence awards are primarily intended for academics who wish to spend up to a year at the Centre. Applicants should normally have obtained a doctorate or equivalent degree by the time they join the Centre. Well-established academics who wish to spend sabbatical time at the Centre are welcome to apply.

The research to be undertaken during the residency should be in an area relevant to the study of Islam or the Muslim world. Currently, research at the Centre is concentrated within the following broad areas, although Scholar-in-Residence applications are welcome from scholars conducting research in a diverse range of topics:

- Classical Islamic Sciences
- Muslim Societies Past and Present
- Identity and Citizenship: Muslims in Britain and the West
- Economic and Human Development and Islamic Finance
- Public Health, Science & Technology in Muslim Societies

Each Scholar-in-Residence will be provided with an office space, access to the Centre's library, membership of the Common Room including the Centre's dining facilities, and assistance with finding residential accommodation.

Scholars-in-Residence are self-funded and pay a fee of £1,500 per term towards the cost of their stay at the Centre.

The closing date for Scholar-in-Residence award applications tenable during the academic year commencing October 2022 is June 15, 2022.
